one of the first needs is rest, combined with pure food and abundance of fresh air night and day. Sometimes these agencies are sufficient to effect relief. In other cases, run-down systems need tonic help.

Where the latter is indicated, it is wise to try Eckman's Alterative—a lime-bearing compound which is easily assimilated by the average person.

For more than twenty years this preparation has been widely used and many recoveries are attributed to it. Even in advanced cases of pilmonary affections it has proved beneficial.

One feature not commonly found in effective medicines is its absolute freedom from poisonous or habit-forming drugs. Therefore a trial is safe.
